freat logic of handwork reminds me of the great beauty of those gowns worn by the bride and her maid at the Averill-Wise wedding last week. They bore the Gluseffi stamp of exclusiveness, and were more chic than any I've seen this winter. late in the autuen, I rang up Mr. Eiting, subjust he informed with great emphasis, established with amusement, that no engagement existed, and that I would be doing the lady a great injustice to make any meution of the rumor.

How very old this is—to be so tremulous in the presence of one's own happiness!

Miss Jane Brown and "Billy" Collins have settled on a late January evening—that of the 2th—for their marriage. The wedding will be at the handsome Brown residence in Lindell boulevard, and will be quite as pretentious an affair as that of the older daughter, Stella, who married Warren Mc-Miroy three or four years ago. Miss Helen Brown is to be her sister's maid of honor, with Miss Lenita Collins, a sister of the bridge-groom-elect, as the only bridgesmaid.

Mr. Collins will be supported by his brother, Calver Ford Collins, as best man, and by Alanson Brown as groomsman; so you see the wedding party is entirely a family one. Two weddings of considerable interest are an for this week, that of Miss Ida Crouch, edder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crouch, to John Townsend Williams, Jr., of Mss Laura Virginia Edwards to liwin Donowa, which will be quietly solemnized on Thursday morning at half after 11 o'clock in the Cathedral chapel in Newstead avenue, and will not be followed by a reception. In the crush of engagements that of Miss Flavia Lynch to Frank von Brecht occasioned much interest and social excitement among friends of both last week. After all, this betrothal was perhaps to be expected, since the two have been much thrown together ever since the wedding of Charles von Brecht and Miss Stolle not many months ago. They were both in the wedding party and have belonged to a little coterie of intimate friends for several years. This wedding date is not yet announced.

Of course New Year's eve parties held high carnival at Faust's. Nearly everybody went to see "Florodora" first, and as this tuneful opera happens to be one with which we are so familiar that we feel privileged to drop in "just in time to hear the sextet, don't you know," there was more or less-mostly more-dropping in all evening. In fact, I have never in my life seen a performance so interrupted as that of Wednesday night. "Interrupted" is hardly a good word, either, since most persons were very quiet and well mannered about it, but everybody was late, and I actually saw the Sam Thompsons and the Peter Wilsons 2-riving when the last act was fully half over, white Sidney Waiker did not join his box party, consisting of Mrs. Walker, wearing a very stunning red-flowered hat, her first party, consisting of Mrs. Walker, wearing a very stunning red-flowered hat, her first departure from mourning, Mr. and Mrs. Isaase Cook and two more friends, until the horns were furiously blowing in the gallery and the singers were smilingly trying to make "I Want to Be a Military Man" have above the din
